K.B.E. CONFERRED UPON COLONIAL SECRETARY

GERMAN FINANCE CRISIS

PARTIAL MORATORIUM EXPECTED

STATEMENT BY DR. SCHACHT

Berlin, June 2.

A moratorium for all of Germany's foreign debts will be announced shortly after Whitsun, stated Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichsbank to-day.

The importance of Dr. Schacht's statement in regard to a moratorium of Germany's foreign debts is shown in the fact that the total debt involved is estimated to be some 20,000,000,000 marks (£1,000,000,000 sterling), on which service charges, totalling about £65,000,000 fall due in the current year.

U. S. BIGGEST CREDITOR.

The United States is the biggest creditor with a total of $,016,000,000 marks. Holland is next with $,427,000,000 and Britain with 2,231,000,000.

TRADE SHRINKAGE.

The present difficulties are due to the tremendous shrinkage in Germany's foreign trade.

The Reichsbank's note cover is only 83 per cent, as compared with the normal legal minimum of 40 per cent.

An official statement has meanwhile been unanimously approved by the conference of the Anglo-American and other foreign bankers on the service of Germany's foreign debt.

It agrees with the desirability of gradually increasing the Reichsbank's reserves of gold and foreign currencies. It recognises the declining surplus from Germany's foreign trade and services which necessitates consideration of protection and the extension of Germany's reserves and foreign exchange.

THE ONLY SOLUTION.

The conference announces that a small permanent group representing the long term creditors will keep in contact with the Reichsbank.

Similarly, the short term creditors will be able to maintain contact through the "Standstill Committee." The statement also says that ultimately these large international debts can be settled only with the movement of goods and the renewal of services.

It assumes that one of the most important and urgent objectives of the World Economic Conference will be to facilitate a prompt and permanent solution of the German transfer problem.

Later.

While Dr. Schacht has not actually stated there will be a moratorium, this is the general interpretation of his statement.

PARIS UNMOVED.

Official circles in Paris are not greatly moved by Dr. Schacht's statement and express the opinion that it merely referred to the debts of the German Government to private individuals. It is not believed to affect the Young Plan bonds.—Reuter.

AMERICAN THREAT.

Later.

Some express the opinion that Dr. Schacht will declare a moratorium of amortisation payments but will try to pay a portion of the interest in foreign currencies and the balance in marks which must be invested or spent in Germany. Payments under the Dawes and Young loans are not at present affected.

The American delegates made clear that in the event of Dr. Schacht declaring a general moratorium the American bondholders were prepared to accept any property in America of German firms whose bonds were in default.—Reuter.

Sir Wilfred Southern.

SIR WILFRED SOUTHERN

AN HONOUR RICHLY DESERVED

COLONY'S WARM APPROVAL

His Majesty the King has been pleased to confer the distinction of Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire upon Hongkong's Colonial Secretary, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, and no local name in the list of Birthday Honours could possibly command more universal approval and satisfaction.

The Colony will unreservedly rejoice with Sir Wilfred Southern that his consistent and devoted services have won recognition from His Majesty. In an honour which has been fully merited by arduous and painstaking work and by a wise discretion and tact which have greatly facilitated the discharge of his difficult duties.

Congratulations will be showered upon Sir Wilfred and Lady Southern from all quarters.

PUBLIC ESTEEM.

If we may say so, the one thing which has impressed the public most during his term of office has been his entire freedom from affectation and his manifest desire to share in the manifold interests of all classes.

He has figured in the realm of sport, has preserved the most cordial contact with the Chinese community, has shown the greatest enthusiasm in any and every movement conducive to the Colony's welfare, and above all, has always lent a ready and sympathetic ear to all suggestions of a constructive character.

His hospitality, too, has been unbounded. In this connexion we cannot refrain from paying a warm tribute to Lady Southern, who has proved herself an ideal hostess. If the art of entertaining is a capacity to make guests feel thoroughly at home, then Sir Wilfred and Lady Southern have learned the secret well, for in all the numerous functions over which they have presided there has been a delightful absence of stiffness and formality.

EARLY DAYS.

Sir Wilfred Thomas Southern, B.A. (Oxon), was born on August 4, 1879 and in his early days of service at Colombo was attached to the Colonial Secretary's Office. Late in 1904, he was acting Office Assistant at Jaffna to the Government Agent, Northern Province. He passed his first examination under the regulations of August 26, 1891, on April 13, 1905, and became acting office assistant to the Government Agent, North Central Province.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS.

His cadet stage being completed, he was appointed Acting District Judge, Tangaila, in 1907, and two years later became Landing Surveyor of Customs, Colombo. His first experience in the administration of the Colonial Secretariat was as Additional Colonial Secretary in the same year, and having passed his second examination, he was appointed Assistant Government Agent, Matla, in 1911.

The beginning of the war found him as Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor, and Extra Assistant Colonial Secretary. In 1916 he was Deputy Collector of Customs, and then left Colombo on war service.

On his return to the Colony, he was appointed Second Assistant Colonial Secretary, also acting as Private Secretary to His Excellency. His appointment to Principal Assistant Colonial Secretary came in 1920, and on returning from leave after December 8, he was made Principal Collector of Customs and Food Controller.

APPOINTED TO HONGKONG.

In March, 1926, he was appointed Colonial Secretary of Hongkong. (Continued on Page 10.)

KING'S BIRTHDAY HONOURS

EARL OF LYTTON MADE KNIGHT OF GARTER

FOUR PEERS CREATED

London, June 3.

The conferment of the Order of the Knight of the Garter upon the Earl of Lytton, author of the now-famous Report upon the Manchuria dispute, forms one of the most interesting features of the King's Birthday Honours list issued to-day.

Four new peers are created, including the well-known publisher, Sir Edward Hiffe, while a baronetcy is conferred on Sir George Penny, whose interest in the Far East is well known.

Lady Simon, wife of the Foreign Secretary, and Baroness Denman, are created Dames Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

The Prince of Wales will deputise for His Majesty at the ceremony of Trooping the Colour which as usual will take place to-day on the Horse Guards Parade. A Government dinner in honour of the birthday anniversary was held last evening at the Foreign Office.

The principal honours are appended:

KNIGHTS OF THE THISTLE.

H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester the third son of His Majesty the King.

The Earl of Elgin, Chairman of the Educational Endowments Committee, Scotland, and a member of the National Council on Juvenile Employment, Scotland, also chairman of the Fourth Conservancy Board and the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust. He was High Commissioner of Church of Scotland from 1925 to 1926.

KNIGHTS OF THE GARTER.

The Earl of Lytton, Privy Counsellor, Viceroy and Acting Governor-General of India in 1925, and Governor of Bengal from 1922 to 1927. The honour is doubtless conferred in connexion with his valuable services to the League of Nations in the preparation of the Sino-Japanese dispute in Manchuria which bears his name.

NEW BARONS.

Maj.-Gen. the Rt. Hon. John Edward Bernard Seely, Privy Counsellor, and Chairman of the National Savings Committee. He has been Lord Lieutenant of Hampshire since 1918. Formerly Secretary of State for War and President of the Air Council.

Sir Edward M. Hiffe, the Chairman of the Hiffe and Sons, Ltd., and of the Guildhall Insurance Co., Ltd., Joint Proprietor of The Daily Telegraph and The Midland Daily Telegraph, Director of Allied Newspapers, Ltd., The Amalgamated Press, Ltd., The Cornhill Press, Ltd., and The London Assurance. He is also Deputy President of British Chamber of Commerce and an officer of the Legion of Honour. He was a Member of Parliament and for some time during the war was Controller of the Machine Tool Department of the Ministry of Munitions.

The Rt. Hon. George Richard Lane Fox, Privy Counsellor, and

member of the Indian Statutory Commission. He has been a Member of Parliament since 1906 and was twice Secretary for Mines.

Sir Ernest Palmer, the eldest son of the late Mr. Samuel Palmer, who was one of the founders of the Hantley & Palmer biscuit concern. He is a director of the firm and Deputy Chairman of the Great Western Railway. He has rendered great services to music. He is one of H.M. Lieutenants for the City of London, and a Trustee of King Edward's Hospital for officers.

PRIVY COUNCILLOR.

Sir Dennis Henry Herbert, M.P. for Walsford since 1918, and one time Deputy Chairman of Ways and Means, at the House of Commons. He is a member of the Council of the Law Society.

BARONETS.

Sir George Penny, M.P., a Director of Eastern Smelting Co., Ltd. and Consolidated Tin Smelters, Ltd. He represented the Federated Malay States in the Bandoeng Agreement, is a Committee Member of the Penang Chamber of Commerce, and has been Government Whip and Junior Lord of the Treasury.

Sir Martin Melvin, Chairman of Ingall, Parsons, Clive, and Co., Ltd., Director of Charles Clifford and Sons, Ltd., Chairman and Governing Director of Associated Catholic Newspapers (1912) Ltd., Deputy Chairman of the Birmingham Household Supply Association. He is famous for his work during the war in raising supplies for the front. He takes a great interest in educational work.

KNIGHT BACHELOR.

William Stewart Duke Elder, the noted Ophthalmic Surgeon and research scholar. He is the author of many text books and papers. He was a research worker in the Ministry of Munitions and has been a member of the War Office. (Continued on Page 9.)

BIRTHDAY PARADE

STIRRING SCENE AT CENOTAPH

Statue Square was the scene of a stirring and spectacular display this morning when, with full naval and military pageantry, the sixty-eighth birthday of His Majesty the King was celebrated. The Royal Salute was received by His Excellency the G.O.C., Major General O. C. Borrett, deputising for His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, who is indisposed. Thousands gathered round the Cenotaph to witness the event.

As soon as His Excellency had taken up his position at the reviewing stand came the boom of 21 Heavy Battery guns which went echoing through the City and were thrown back from the hills on the mainland only to resound against the Peak and travel across the harbour again.

A full three of four minutes elapsed before the sound eventually died away. Interspersed with the battery fire and fired at the conclusion of the seventh, fourteenth and twenty-first round was the rattle of the feu-de-joie.

Then came the sound of the band and the military and naval units, marched past His Excellency and made a tour of the City.

All warships, merchantmen and ferry boats in the Harbour were decorated in honour of His Majesty's Birthday.

MA CHAN-SHAN IN COLONY

WARM RECEPTION ON CONTE ROSSO

General Ma Chan-shan and General Su Ping-ven arrived this morning on the Conte Rosso and were welcomed by representatives of the Canton Koumintang, Canton Government officials, and leading Chinese residents.

Ma Chan-shan declined to go into details of the causes leading to the general retreat of the Manchurian troops in Manchuria but said his troops gave up resistance through lack of arms and ammunition. He was confident that upon his return to Chharhar, he would find a large force at his disposal.

In reply to questions, the General stated that he did not believe the rumour of a final compromise between the Nanking Government and the Japanese. He was unable to accept a pressing invitation to visit Canton as he was anxious to re-join his followers at Shanghai and his family. He was not certain whether or not he would go to Nanking to report events in Heilungkiang as there was not much to report apart from the defeat of his troops.

During a Police raid at a house in Hennessy Road, Wanchai, a Chinese jumped over the verandah. He sustained injuries to the head and body and was removed to hospital for treatment.

The heavy rain yesterday has resulted in a landslide in the West Point area, where houses in Yat Foo Street have been endangered. Although the slide is of small proportions, nevertheless tenants have been warned to leave, as there are said to be cracks in a perilous position.

ARMISTICE STRATEGY

THE POWERS AND MANCHUKUO

COAXING EFFORT, EXPECTED

London, June 2.

Expressing the opinion that the Japanese have adopted a wise policy in signing an armistice, the Week-End Review says that the watchword is peace and goodwill until further notice.

If the formula works, an attempt to coax some sort of recognition of Manchukuo out of least some of the Powers may soon be expected.

British opinion will be on guard against this transparent strategy, but at the same time (following the Lytton Report) it will appreciate the importance of finding some better basis than at present exists for Japanese economy and population as a condition of settled peace in the Far East.

The Spectator considers that Nanking's recent futile armed resistance has been no more than a gesture for the benefit of Chinese public opinion.—Reuter.

PHILIPPINE "LIBERATION"

DELEGATES ARRIVE IN HONGKONG

NO AGREEMENT ON POLICY

Sixty strong, the members of the Philippines Independence Mission arrived in Hongkong this morning by the Lloyd Triestino liner Conte Rosso.

They are led by the Hon. Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Philippine Senate and Chairman of the Nacionalista (Government) Party, and members included the Hon. Sergio Osmeña, President Pro Tempore of the Philippine Senate, and vice-Chairman of the Nacionalista, the Hon. Manuel Roxas, Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Hon. Ruperto Montinola, Minority Floor Leader in the Philippine Senate and the Hon. Emilio T. Tirona, Minority Floor Leader in the House of Representatives.

The Members of the Mission, who are accompanied by their respective families, will remain in Hongkong for approximately one week, after which they will return to Manila. Most of Members have been in the United States for several months, in connexion with the Hawes-Cutting Bill for (Continued on Page 9.)

YOUR CHILDREN

Give the Children Music—Early!

By Olive Roberts Barton

Every mother is a potential teacher. So is every older sister or brother.

It is worth thinking about in these days of limited pocketbooks. Not long ago a lady of my acquaintance who plays the piano beautifully was lamenting the lack of money to give her small daughter lessons. It never occurred to her that she could teach the child the rudiments of music herself. Of course she is busy but half an hour three times a week could surely be spared.

Let me tell you a story. I happened at the moment to be visiting my sister Mary Roberts Rinehart.

I hadn't touched a piano for years but I sat down and played a few old tunes the other night that surprised both the piano and myself as well as my sister. They were not remembered, these old tunes—they were reflex, imbedded in my spinal column and the tips of my fingers, but there they were, old Victor Herbert operas, "Waltz Blue," "Hearts and Flowers" and so on.

Tunes Stay With One

We began to talk about old times and Miss Walton, her music teacher when she was a little girl. I had the same chance but I was sick much of the time and I didn't like to practice, so in a month or two I was kindly removed from Miss Walton's tried and tired nerves, and my musical future abandoned.

Yet here I was years and years later playing Schubert's "Serenade" and Handel's "Largo." It was these that caught my sister's attention.

Mrs. Rinehart said, "Who did teach you to play? I can't remember somehow."

"You did!"

She gazed at me in astonishment. "So I did," she exclaimed. "But I didn't want much. You've learned a lot since then."

Don't Wait for "Teens"

"I hated it like sin, but you made me," I told her. "You taught me all that was in your first exercise book. I remember the day you flew excitedly down street and bought me my first piece."

"What was it? 'Bluebells of Scotland'?" she smiled.

"No—Sousa's 'High School Cadets.' And I couldn't get it. But once I learned it I played it till the family held its ears. Later I branched out on my own. I never had another teacher. What you taught me I simply worked out by myself."

Mrs. Rinehart must have been about 12 or 13 years old when she commanded me as a pupil. I was a bit younger. No one suggested that she teach me music, certainly not I! She was determined that I learn and it was only my own impatience that broke up her interest in my musical education.

Something to Cherish

Later I began to buy pieces and learn them. I never played well—music was always hard for me—but I wouldn't trade my bit of knowledge for anything I know

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Glamorous Gowns for Moonlit Evenings

And They're Complete—Not Begging Evening Wraps!

BY JOHN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

Real imagination has gone into the new evening things that are appearing about town. The summeriest of summer fabrics make them. Colours vary from dark to the most misty pastels. Blue is better than black, for a dark choice. And practically all of them are costumes, rather than a gown that begs for an evening wrap.

Uppers are still the spectacular part of these evening gowns. Though some of them have introduced back fullness that falls in folds in a fascinating manner that has quaint newness.

Organza is the glamorous summer fabric of the moment. A stunning navy blue organza has its dress made with a moderate neckline, V in the back, and then has a little jacket that gives a peek-a-boo effect over the dress, the jacket being close up around the neck and with long sleeves. The jacket crosses in front and ties in sash bow in the back.

Foulard and taffeta take inspiration from Queen Elizabeth to fashion a stunning summer evening outfit. The yellow and black foulard, with a new crinkly texture, makes a charming dress with a wide collar following the neckline clear down the deep back. Over this goes the little jacket with three-quarter sleeves, ending in pleated ruffles. The pleating outlines the collar, giving a soft frame for the face and the lapels which point clear over the puffed sleeves.

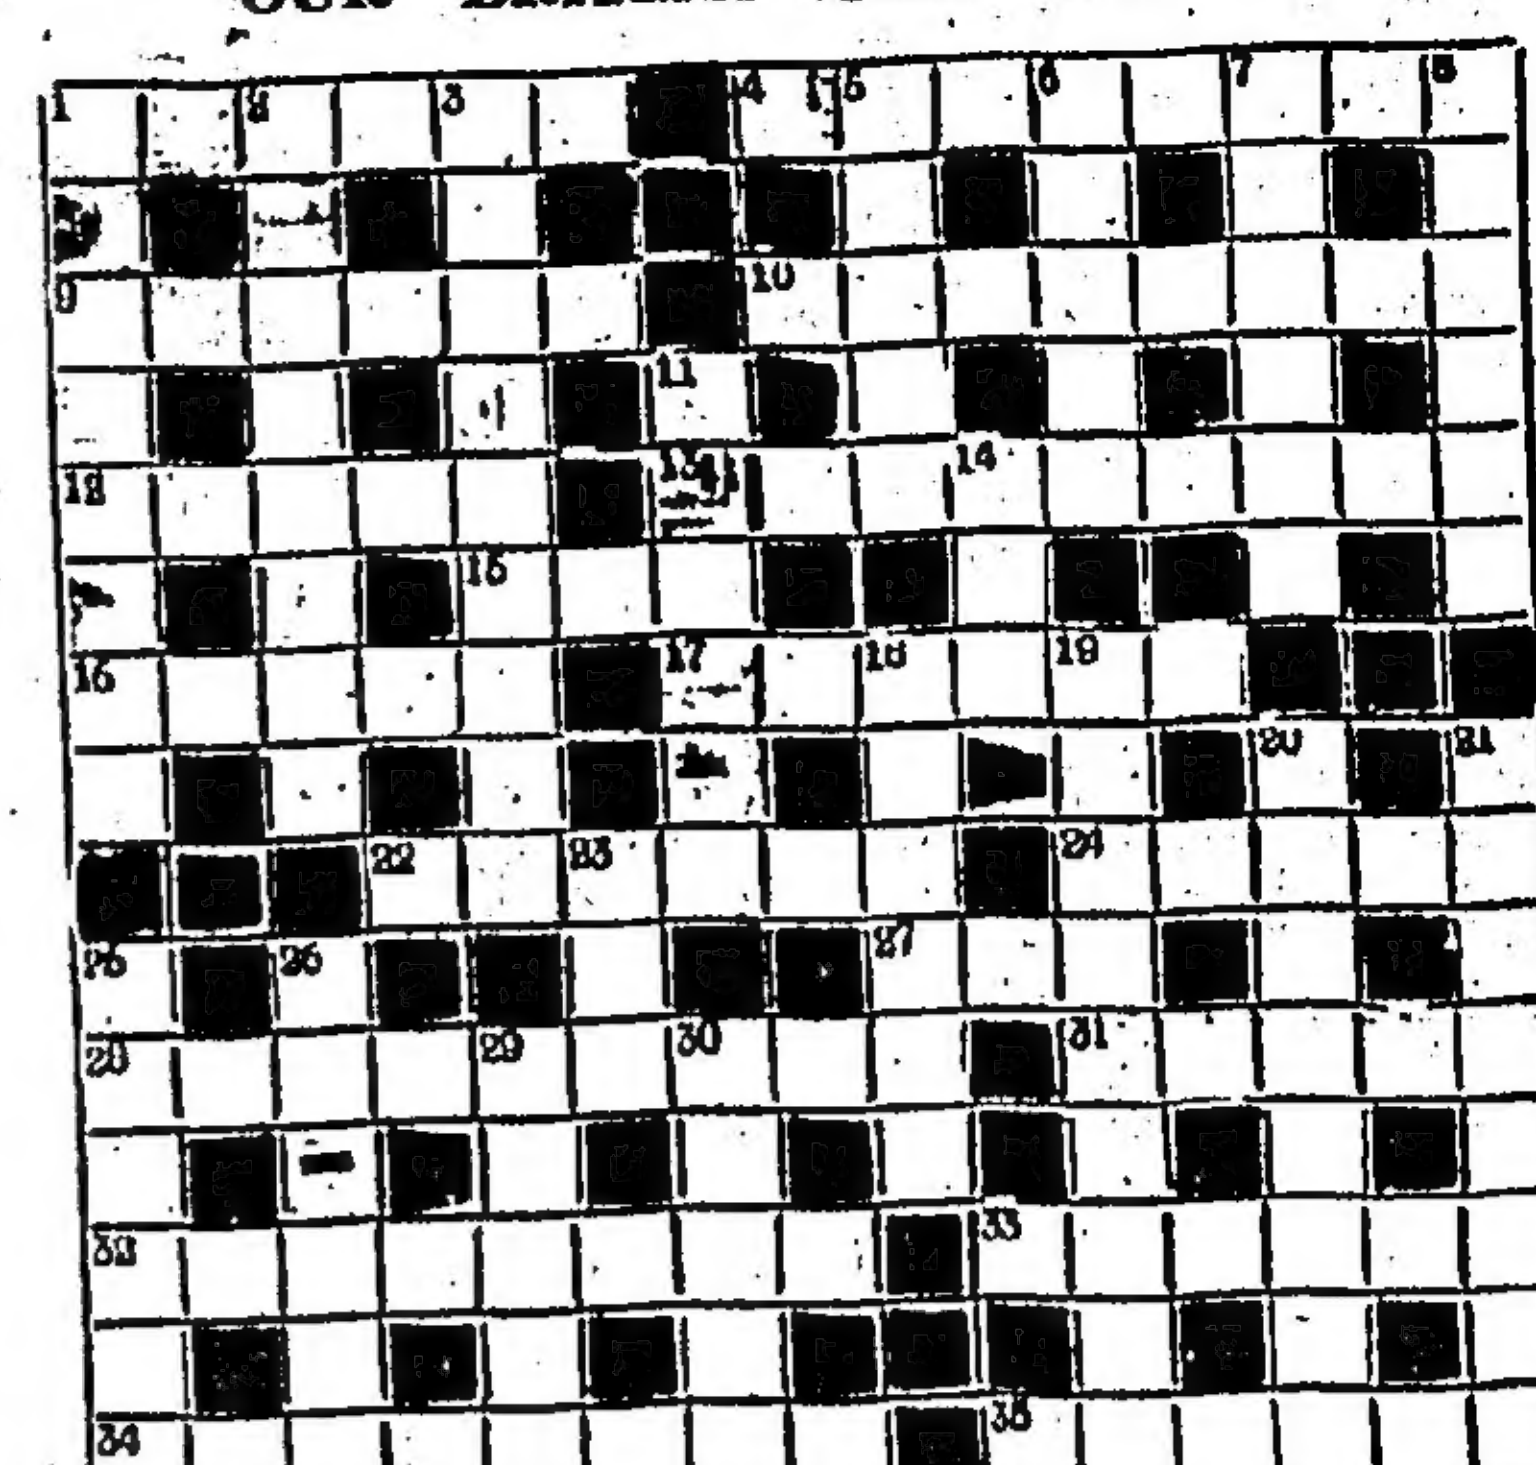

The skirt is beautifully cut, with point seams around the hips that slenderize the figure. Then the skirt flares gradually until it is sufficiently full for comfort and dancing.

at the present. My appreciation of good music has continued to grow.

All this goes to prove a point. If anyone in the family is interested enough, children may be taught many things they do not get in school. I was especially fortunate.

I told my friend she could teach her daughter music, at least start her on it, and later when she can afford it, get her a teacher. The first notes, the ability to read, to place the fingers on the keys correctly will help so much. It is worth while.

EVEREST FLIERS

PRESENTED WITH MEDALS BY DUKE OF YORK

London, June 2.
The recent successful flights over Mt. Everest by the Houston Expedition were celebrated at a lunch given by The Times to-day. During the lunch, H.R.H. the Duke of York presented specially struck medals to the fliers. The wives of the three cinema operators, who are still in India, received their husbands' medals from the Duke.

Major Astor, who presided, read a congratulatory message from His Majesty the King.

The Marquess of Clydesdale, responding, said they flew over Mt. Everest with at least 800 feet to spare.—Reuter Special.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XLVI

The native's cry struck terror in both girls' hearts. "Boss Steve hurt by fer-de-lance." The deadly snake of the West Indies. If Steve were a victim of the fer-de-lance he would die!

Lottie groaned and hurried forward, Mona close behind. The car had reached the entrance now.
Barry was issuing orders and Bud was helping the native boys lift out Steve.

With quick, sharp directions
from Miss Gracie they carried Steve into the house and laid him gently on a lounge. The terror-stricken natives were hustled away. Josie came running, bringing hot water.

Outside the door Mona and Lottie waited, too frightened to speak.

Suddenly Lottie said, "The Miranda! Dr. Allen is aboard with serum. They must be close to Granada now! Oh, Mona, if we could get some of that serum perhaps it would save him!" She glanced at her watch. "I'm going to try, Mona—"

The maid passed with a basin of water. Lottie ran into the room where Barry was.

"Barry!" she cried. "Quick! If we can get anti-toxin from the snake institute won't that save him?"

Quickly she explained her plan.
Dr. Allen was aboard the Miranda, bringing serum from the snake institute to Martinique. If he could be reached she knew he would help them.

A light of incredulous joy spread over Barry's face as Lottie went on talking. The Miranda was a scant 15 minutes away by plane. If there was anti-toxin aboard they must send for it.

He called Bud and explained.
Steve's life was at stake. Miss Gracie, adept in such matters, would know what to do until they could return.

"Let me go with you, Bud," begged Lottie. "I'm going—!"
"Don't you think you'd better stay here, Lottie, in case Steve wants you?"

"I'll need someone to help me!"
interposed Miss Gracie.

"Do they mean in case Steve wants her or in case Steve dies?"
Mona thought to herself. Instantly her mind was made up. "I'll go with Barry and Bud," she announced. "I know Dr. Allen. You stay here, Lottie. That's the best way."

Miss Gracie, kneeling by the couch, was bathing Steve's wounded leg. Lottie, watching, thought she would faint as she saw the woman pick up a sharp kitchen-knife and, with sharp, merciless jabs, cut criss-cross into the wounded flesh. Steve lay with his eyes closed. He barely winced at the knife cuts. His face seemed incredibly pale.

Mona ran to the entrance where Bud and Barry had arrived with the car. The automobile coughed, choked and then went hurtling forward. Out the yard, down through the tunnel of trees to the airport. It was a distance of half a mile yet almost instantly Lottie heard the roar of the engine and saw the Ladybird rise in the air, hesitate and then go roaring on, its nose in the direction of Granada.

Lottie came back to the porch.
Josie knelt there sobbing, holding a basin of water and watching Miss Gracie's capable hands.

"Find some disinfectant, Lottie," Miss Gracie ordered sharply.

Upstairs the girl flew. Disinfectant? Where would it be?
Her fingers fumbled about the medicine shelf. Ah, this was it.
This would do!

Hurrying downstairs, Lottie stood awestruck and fascinated while Miss Gracie risked her own life drawing the poison from the wound with every application.

This she did again and again.
Would she die too? For Lottie had given up hope. Leaning against the frame of the door, Lottie watched, praying for the first time in a long, long while.

"That should do until they get here," Miss Gracie was saying, struggling to her feet and looking down at the wound.

"You mean—?"

Miss Gracie shook her head. "I mean that with the serum they are bringing he will be all right.
Even without it he might have a chance! He has wonderful vitality, a wonderful constitution. I've seen men die from a snake bite in less time than it took to bring him here!"

She stopped, abstractedly, to pick up a towel, indicated the basin of water to Josie and was off to the kitchen.

Lottie dropped into a chair beside the couch where Steve lay.
He seemed asleep, not unconscious, except that his face was pale and his lips hung open a little like a child off guard. His hair, curling about his forehead, was matted with perspiration. The neck of his shirt was open, his tie missing.
His hands, usually so strong, so capable, were relaxed. One was flung out along his side, the other hanging over the edge of the couch.

The wounded leg was carefully propped up with pillows. It was bare from the thigh to ankle, a compress over the wound.

He lay so still that Lottie shivered. Except for the slight motion of breathing he might be dead!

The minutes ticked away. Miss Gracie returned, stopping quietly for so bulky a woman. Lottie noticed that she was careful in her movements. That was a good sign. That meant she believed he would live!

"I think I hear the Ladybird," Miss Gracie said suddenly. At that very moment there was a cry outside. The maids came clustering about the door in excitement,
old Maria bringing up the rear.

"Boss Barry coming!" Florence was saying eagerly.

There was no doubt about it.
The droning hum, the increasing roar was the Ladybird. It came hurtling through the air, closer and closer.

Landing on the golf course, I expect," Miss Gracie was saying.
"That's closer. One more time won't hurt it."

"One more time!" Lottie repeated. The song she and Steve had sung as they danced together
went that way. "One more time!
Just one more time!"

One more time to see Steve alive and well was all that she wanted
of heaven or of earth.

The Ladybird settled abruptly into a circle of trees and was lost to view. Presently the stream of native boys began once again to pour out of the tunnel, gesticulating wildly. The car followed at top speed.

Mona sat in the car. Bud was hanging on the running board and at the wheel this time was Barry.
There was a stranger with them.
Young Dr. Allen! That must mean that they had brought the serum.

Lottie grew weakly limp and quietly dropped to the verandah.
She had, for the first time in her life, fainted away.

"We've got it," she heard a voice
cry as everything became a blur.
There were rustlings, stirrings.
At length Lottie opened her eyes.
She was in her own room lying on the bed and Mona was bending anxiously over her. Dr. Allen, smiling anxiously too, stood at the other side of the bed.

But the doctor was here when he should be with Steve! That was Lottie's first thought. Almost immediately she noticed that it was dark outside. She must have lain in a faint for hours.

Her lips moved but the words
did not come.

"Do you want Steve?" Mona asked. "Oh, he's all right now.
We brought the doctor with us,
you know. Reached Granada just in time. The boat was blowing its last whistle. The serum was there too and it worked perfectly.
"Steve will be beating you at
dead!"

Its sales, which surpass
those of any other whisky,
are enough indication of its

MAN FIGHTS A LION

EFFORT TO SAVE COMPANION

DIES LATER

London.
It is not often that one finds a "human story" in the austere pages of the official "London Gazette." But there is certainly one in the announcement that the King has approved the posthumous award of the medal of the Civil Division of the Order of the British Empire, for gallantry, to the late Reginald Henry Montague Gray, Clerk to the Magistrate of N'garimland, Bechuanaland.
The circumstances of his gallantry are thus officially described:—
"While on an expedition in August last Mr. Gray attempted to save a comrade from a wounded lion.
"Mr. Gray, who had as his only weapon an empty shot gun, without hesitation clubbed the lion which had attacked his companion, until the gun broke.
"He then tried, while kicking the animal, to pull it away with his hands. The lion was eventually shot by a third person.
"Mr. Gray died a few days later as a result of shock."—Reuter.

LAST RACE MEETING

Bold General was fourth on one occasion in a sub's event and on Monday he should be prominent, but he is not good enough to beat the first mentioned runner.

YANGTZE STAKES.

If the weather remains rainy Valorous or Marquis Hall should be the first to catch the judges' eyes in the Yangtze Stakes. The Tiger is my selection if the course is fast and hard. Blue Star is a real danger in this moderate field in which Champagne Bay may also be started and in such an event it should offer strong challenge to Valorous.

WEST RIVER PLATE.

Kratz Viz, as a sprinter in its class, needs no introduction and if the going is good he should score the first win of the season. Battling Horse was the victim of a terrible start and on Monday S. N. Pan can do much better with him. An upset in this race is not without the realm of possibilities and among the outsiders which should be considered by punters are The Rainstorm, Lucky Star, The Loafer, Esk and Auction Bridge.

HWANG HO STAKES.

Wakefield and Widnes, on their recent form, are my selections. Mike and Dee both strike as being a good one here despite their long absence in the listing of winning and placed ponies in recent meetings. Both ponies, however, have run close to the placed candidates in the last couple of meetings and if any one of them strikes any form it will win.

YORKSHIRE PILING UP POINTS

total. Taylor, the Essex batsman also enjoyed the distinction of recording three figures.

Only time prevented Middlesex from winning fifteen points from Glamorgan. The Londoners seemed to gain a winning position in the first innings, but Glamorgan returned to bat with skill and confidence in their second knock and Middlesex had to rest content with first innings points.

One of the most exciting results was that between Worcester and the West Indies, when the county team won by one wicket. The visitors led on the first innings by 24 runs, but thanks to a brilliant century by the Nawab of Patnauli, scored the 234 runs needed for victory with one wicket to spare.—Reuter.

CHEERFUL TITLES!SOME OF THE NEW PUBLICATIONS

Are we downhearted? Here are the titles of some of the new books that have appeared recently:

"Murders at the Crab Apple Cafe"
"Death at the Wheel"
"Murders Form Four"
"Death in the Forest"
"Murder on the Glass Floor"
"Death Rocks the Cradle"
"The Creeping Death"

The two most original titles are perhaps:

"The Prime Minister's Pyjamas" and "Why Shoot a Butler?" Most of the above, of course, are thrillers. The best book of thrills for some time is "He Arrived as Dusk" (Hodder and Stoughton, 7/6) by R. C. Ashby. Here you have ghastly stuff at its most un-convincing. But Scotland Yard is always worth backing—in fiction.

CHATELAINE WINS.

Fourteen Starters In The Oaks.

SAM WRAGG'S RIDE.

London, June 2. The Oaks was run at Epsom today, resulting as follows:
Chataleine (S. Wragg) 1
Solfatara (S. Donoghue) 2
Furtor (Jones) 3
The odds: 25/1 Chataleine; 20/1 Solfatara; 100/8 Furtor.

The winner won by one and a half lengths. There were two lengths separating the next two horses.—Reuter.

Fourteen ran.
Sammy Wragg rode Chataleine, instead of Fox. It was a last-minute change.

The following also ran: Arethusa, Artistic, Betty, Brown Betty, Coalbrookdale, Coin of the Realm, Gerard's Cross, Katherine Root, Sholanagig, Star of England, Versicle.

King Attends.
Glorious summer weather brought countless thousands to Epsom for Ladies Day to watch the Fillys Classic.

Lord Stanley, the King and Queen Mary, accompanied by the Princess Royal attended. The result was a surprise victory for Mr. Thornton Smith, Director of the famous store of Fortnum, Mason and also a Government director of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Lord Stanley, son of Lord Derby, winner of the last Derby, and owner of Versicle, was most disappointed in the failure of his filly. He fully hoped to repeat his father's victory.

Sammy Wragg, the jockey had his first classic victory on Chataleine, who had not won a race before in six outings. She is the most temperamental horse and is always accompanied by a white goat stable companion.—Reuter.

Doctor's Unique Operation

MAKING A NEW FINGER

Sydney, N.S.W.

In order to save a finger on an Air Force Mechanic's left hand, on which depends his competence as a musician, doctors at the Prince of Wales Hospital, Randwick, have undertaken a unique operation.

Ernest Keller was working a lathe at Richmond aerodrome when his ring-finger was jammed in the machinery, and severely lacerated.

An amputation was proposed by the doctors, but, in answer to Keller's pleading that amputation might mean to him the loss of a livelihood, they decided to make an effort to save the finger.

An incision was made in the body, above the groins, and the mutilated finger was straggled inside it.

It will be left there until new skin has grafted, and it will be then cut out, and the flaps of skin would round it to form a new finger.

A saxophone player, violinist, and pianist, and bandmaster of No. 3 Squadron, Keller said that he would sacrifice half his life rather than lose his musical accomplishments.

The pain from the operation was intense, he declared, but he resigned himself to it in the hope of ultimate recovery.

I have been a musician ever since childhood days," he said.

Now only 31, he went into Liverpool camp in the last year of the war, and was attached to the military band. He has been a mechanic at Richmond for six years and a half.—Reuter.

A LANDMARK OF LITERATURE

FOREST PRESENTED BY AUTHORS

London.

Near Avignon a forest is being formed by M. Lugne-Poe, the actor-dramatist, which will become a landmark of literature. For all the trees are being presented by living authors.

"Send me a tree for my forest," is the appeal sent forth to every man of letters he knows by this ambitious Frenchman.

So two yew trees have come from Macerlinck—with the request that they are named "Macerlinck" and "Selysette".

Gerhardt Hauptmann has contributed two pine trees from Pomerania—and they are to enter France duty free.

Bernard Shaw has sent along an oak—"As sturdy and gnarled as himself".

Some other author has sent two laurels. . . .

A good game would be to think of other suitable gifts for this forest. A weeping willow might come from Sir Philip Gibbs. Or a monkey puzzle from James Joyce.

And from our latest young novelist—a lemon.—Reuter.

Harris Smith.
Harry Cohen decided to learn to swim rather late in life. He appeared to his expert instructor to be a normal pupil and he soon mastered the American crawl, and then the kick and the arm stroke.

Eventually the day arrived when he was told he might take to the water on his own. Accordingly he pushed off from the side of the bath and, while the impetus carried him forward, he appeared to travel quite well; but his speed gradually slackened until he stopped—and then he started travelling backwards.

His coach took him in hand, and eventually every member of the swimming club offered advice and assistance; but although he does every motion of the crawl correctly Harry Cohen travels backwards instead of forward.—Reuter.

INDEPENDENCE OF PHILIPPINES

The battleground in the long fight of the Philippines for independence has shifted from Washington to the Orient with the arrival of Manila's outstanding political leaders in Hongkong this morning. They are sailing for the Philippines next week and from the moment of landing in Manila, the political combat is expected to begin. At the moment they are divided into two camps, the Osmena-Roxas group in favour of acceptance of the Hare-Hawes-Cutting Act granting independence after ten years, and the Quezon group avowing opposition, demanding speedier liberation. The destiny of the Philippines may be irrevocably cast in the next few weeks. The influences which will be brought to bear in approaching the decision include the natural nationalistic aspirations of the Filipinos; the political fortunes of the various leaders, who have frequently been accused of using the independence question as a political football; honest differences over the form that independence should take; the Philippine sugar interests who waver between two loves, one the ideal of independence and the other free trade with the United States; an uncertain future in the troubled affairs of the Far-East; conviction in the minds of many Filipinos, influential in business affairs of the islands, that disaster for political independence at the present time lurks in the economic situation of the Philippines, and a closely related belief that complete political independence is not essential to the development of Filipino nationalism and individualism, the future of which might hold more promise under the American flag than otherwise. Any one of three things may happen: Unqualified acceptance of the Hare-Hawes-Cutting act, acceptance with reservations, or rejection. Either out-and-out acceptance or blunt rejection probably would mean a split in the Nacionalista Consolidado party, the majority of which is controlled by Senor Quezon. A victory for acceptance would probably mark the overthrow of Quezon, with the new national leadership vested in Osmena and Roxas. Maintenance of the party intact will lie in the compromise proposal, to accept the act with reservations, which would again throw the question back to the American Congress, and prolong the uncertainty of the islands' future. The reservations, if this scheme is adopted, may be in line with the Emilio Aguinaldo. The main features of this plan include abandonment of all military reservations in the islands by the United States and independence in four or five years, with free trade in the intervening transition period. Adoption of such a plan would in all probability still leave Quezon in the dominant position, unless a secondary split developed over the reservations. Most observers believe that Quezon's position is secure. While Osmena and Roxas were busy in Washington, Quezon was in Manila, building his political fences. During 1932, the former Governor-General, Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, worked closely with Quezon. There was a complete government re-organization for economy reasons during the year, and the shake-up of office holders gave Quezon an unprecedented opportunity to strengthen his position. Thus political observers believe that if the split should come, Quezon will have Roxas and Osmena effectively checked in the Philippines, even though Quezon went to Washington with a flourish to get a "better" bill and has returned empty-handed. In this connection, there has been some speculation in Manila as to how much Osmena and Roxas may have had to do with "stopping" Quezon in Washington. The full extent of the Washington picture was obscured by the pressing domestic and international questions during Quezon's short stay there, but it is generally believed that the long labours of the Osmena-Roxas mission with friends of independence in Congress must have brought about a considerable warmth and understanding. Osmena and Roxas attended a conference at the White House between the President, the Secretary of War and Congressional leaders shortly before Quezon's arrival, which was followed by the announcement that the administration was not disposed to further Congressional action on the question until the islands exercised the option of accepting or rejecting the bill.

The decision of the Philippines may be made either by the legislature or a convention. Virtually all public expressions still maintain that the people of the islands are unequivocally for independence, and the controversy lies only in the means to independence, although many prominent Filipinos in business talk privately in favour of some sort of permanent dominion status, similar to Senor Quezon's conception of a "free-will partnership" which he advanced when he returned to the islands two years ago. His suggestion at that time failed to take seed, and he has since been laying emphasis on early independence, apparently believing that the partnership plan is now beyond the realm of consideration.

A Story With Two Morals

"Speech is silver, silence is golden," to millions who have quoted it has remained an adage and nothing more. A man in Delaware has transmuted it apparently into actual coin to liquidate his debts. Eleven years ago, Mr. Melvin Train persuaded friends to invest in a new business. Through the fault of another their money was lost. Mr. Train resolved to make good his friends' losses and never to speak until full restoration was completed. A day or two ago he mailed the cheque which cancelled the remaining indebtedness. Then he spoke for the first time in eleven years. Unlike the dumb wife in Anatole France's diverting comedy who, recovering her speech, talked with terrifying volubility, Mr. Train said little. The habit of taciturnity has grown upon him. Writing his wishes on a pad has taught him brevity. Doubtless. But he spoke to some purpose: There seem to be two morals to the story—Be silent, and Be honest. Without going as far as Carlyle's dictum that "no speech ever uttered or uttered in silence," most will admit that that "unruly member," the tongue, needs constant curbing. And, at a time when too many, without a real excuse, take wrong advantage of prevailing conditions to evade their obligations, Mr. Train's code of honesty points to a code of honour worthy of wider application.

WHY DIARIES SHOULD NOT BE DESTROYED

By ROBERT LYND.

A man who has kept a diary for 50 years has been asking whether he ought to destroy it before he dies, or leave it to his executors to wade through it and to decide whether it contains anything of interest to posterity.

How like the modesty of the true diarist! Almost every other kind of writer is impatient until he has found an audience. A poet cannot address eight lines to a robin without thrusting them enthusiastically into the hands of a friend almost before the ink is dry. The novelist would feel that he was wasting his time if nobody but himself read his novels. Mr. Wells did not write his "Outline of History" as a secret hobby. The anthropologist who writes a book of 600 pages on Totemism and Exogamy in the Ruritanian Archipelago is buoyed up by the hope that he will be read by at least six other anthropologists. Even the man who writes a love-letter does so with an audience of one in his mind.

The diarist alone writes without desire of approbation or reward. "You've been reading my diary!" cries the child indignantly, when one of its prying elders is caught reading the secret document. Poets do not fly into a fury like this if they find you reading their latest book of poems.

I could not keep a diary myself. I dislike the act of writing, and I would not voluntarily write anything longer than a telegram. Like everybody else, I tried to keep a diary as a child, but the effort lasted only a few weeks. By February the entries dwindled into "Nothing," "Ditto," "Ditto," and after that ten months of blank pages.

Yet I am sure the days were crowded with events. My "Nothing" was a measure, not of the day's interest, but of my indolence. NEVER FAILING MATERIAL. The truth is, there are far too many things happening every day for it to be possible for anybody but a very industrious man to make a complete record of them. To begin with, there is breakfast. The diarist who loves food, you will notice, likes to make a note of what he eats. Turning over his pages years afterwards, he will be reminded to his great satisfaction that at the hotel in Falmouth, on May 6, 1933, he breakfasted on porridge, fried sole, egg and bacon, and four slices of toast and honey. If a man kept a diary describing his meals alone, what a shelfful of volumes he would have filled by the age of seventy! And with what interesting matter!

There are other diarists who keep a record of all the money they spend down to a halfpenny. Their diaries, if preserved, would provide fascinating reading for the economists of future generations. "Tram from Hampstead to Holborn, 2d.; lunch, sausage mashed, 10d.; roll and butter, 2½d.; coffee, 3d.; tip, 2d.," and so on through the day down to the last penny wrung from the unwilling diarist by a belated flag-seller. This kind of diary may seem prosaic, but who is there who is not interested in the cost of things in past ages? Everybody likes to know the size of the tip Dr. Johnson gave the waiter in the coffee-house. I should therefore advise every diarist to keep a minute account of his daily expenses.

I like, too, a diary that records symptoms. The ideal diarist will tell us of his indigestion and of the resolution that he has made never again to take a second helping of roast pork. He will tell of his sore throat and of the two tablets he swallowed before going to bed. He will note with alarm a twinge that may be rheumatism and record his determination to take regular exercise. Alarm, error and repentance all help to make a diary interesting.

There are some diarists who confine themselves to an account of each day's weather. In England nothing could be less monotonous. They are, for the most part, men who seem to spend all their lives looking at the barometer and the rain-gauge. An extra-inch of rain is for them a more exciting event than the triumph of Hitler.

There are diarists who have great subjects—who are at the heart of great affairs, like Pepys, or are in close association with a great man, like Boswell; and whose journals in a measure become secret chapters of history. The ordinary man, however, lives in a comparatively ordinary world, with no great figure to add lustre to the pages of his diary. That perhaps, is why his diary so often stops short in the third week of January. He does not feel that his life is romantic enough to be worth the pains of a daily description. To keep a diary, a man must, as a rule, feel that everything that is happening either to him or around him is enormously and exceptionally interesting. The feeling that life is enormously and exceptionally interesting is, perhaps, one of the strongest elements in personality, and it is personality that makes the best diaries.

The greatest of diarists, Pepys, however, is as eagerly interested in small affairs as in great. He begins his diary as the most obscure of men might, with the sentence: "Blessed be God, at the end of last year I was in very good health, without any sense of my old pain, but upon taking cold." His first entry for the first of January is concerned merely with the events of an ordinary man's ordinary Sunday. "This morning," it begins, "(we living lately in the garret) I rose, put on my suit with great skirts, having not lately worn any other clothes but them"; tells how he went to church, and gives the text of the sermon; reports that he dined on the "remains of a turkey," and that his wife burned her hand in dressing it; makes a note of the fact that he spent the afternoon at home looking over his accounts; mentions the walk with his wife to his father's, some great posts recently set up in Fleet-street which he passed on the way, the supper at his father's, the fact that he and his wife showed two ladies to their homes, "and so to our own home."

THE INTERESTING DIARY.

It seems to me that any man who takes as much interest as Pepys (Continued on Page 9.)

WILD ARMED
REVOLTCONVICTS BREAK
SETTLEMENT

MANY STILL FREE

Sao Paulo, Brazil.
Wild armed revolt blazed out among the convicts on an island penal settlement of the Brazilian State of Sao Paulo when a door was accidentally left unlocked.

Forty convicts who eventually escaped on rafts are still at large—no doubt scattered through the mountain forests of the mainland.

It happened on the little Isle of Pige (Ilha dos Pombos), just south of the Tropic of Capricorn, less than two miles from the coast of Sao Paulo.

The unlocked door made it possible for a group of mutineers to seize rifles and ammunition. The Governor, with some warders, was held a prisoner, while his quarters were ransacked, the safe opened, and cash stolen.

Communication with Sao Paulo was made impossible by the destruction of the wireless apparatus.

In a short time, the whole island was in the hands of the mutineers. Some of them began to make rafts. Other invaded the chemist's stores, and made a concoction of 98-per-cent alcohol, water, sugar and lemon. Nearly four gallons of this drink were consumed.

Then about forty of the convicts, including the leaders who were armed, set sail in the rafts, leaving the remainder on the island.

Those left behind were soon intimidated by the Governor, who had managed to conceal a revolver. A message sent to the mainland brought reinforcements next day, and ended a revolt in which not a single life had been lost.—Reuter.

Would

HIMSELF UP

Berlin.
A burglar, who surrendered to the police here, declared that he had had so many misfortunes in one day that he would rather be arrested than tempt fate further.

He started his "black day" early in the morning by breaking into a warehouse on the fifth floor.

His first misfortune was that the alarm clock worked, and two policemen answered the call.

To escape them he twice risked death. In his tale of woe he said he had—

Sought refuge on the roof, where he was almost asphyxiated by a chimney's smoke;

Jumped on to an iron fire escape, where he was nearly electrocuted when the iron got into contact with an electric light wire, and jumped again for his life into the street, where he landed in a passing vehicle loaded with liquid cement.

He was unable to get out of the cement and lay intended for one hour until the lorry reached its destination. When he was lifted out, his clothes were like rusty armour, and stuck tight to his body.

"I surrender," he declared, "after such a day." Now he has been sentenced to 12 months imprisonment.—Reuter.

The police of a local township are convinced that hens are grateful creatures. The other night they came across a man who had eighteen chickens in his car and could not prove ownership. The police automatically became custodians. They provided a nice coop and the next day found fourteen eggs in it. At the end of the following day the total of eggs had run up to thirty.—Reuter.

STILL OPPOSED.
Interviewed aboard the Conte Rosso this morning, the Hon. Manuel L. Quezon, in commenting on the Hawes-Cutting Bill, said that he reiterated his previous statements to the effect that the Mission would, under no circumstances, advocate the acceptance of the Bill, either in its present, or in any other form.

"I stand firm on what I previously said," said the Hon. Mr. Quezon. "The Hawes-Cutting Bill is unacceptable to the people of the Philippine Islands, and we definitely stand against its acceptance in any form whatever."

"The sentiment of the people of the Philippine Islands was against the acceptance of this Bill before I left Manila, and I have no reason to believe that it has changed."

NO REPORT READY.
"The Mission has not yet formulated a report to place before the Legislature, and this will not be done until our return to Manila. Therefore I cannot make any statement at this juncture."

Asked if there was any truth in the report that he intended to resign from the Legislature in order to test public sentiment on the question of independence, the Hon. Quezon refused to either deny or affirm the report.

"Wait and see," he said in answer to the question. The Members of the Mission will be the guests of the local Filipino Club at a large banquet to be held in their honour at the Peninsula Hotel early next week.

BRITISH GOLD
POLICYCURRENCY PROTECTION
FIRST ESSENTIAL

London, June 2.
Great Britain must revert to the gold standard as agreed at the Ottawa Conference, declared Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons yesterday, when he outlined the Government's attitude in respect to vital problems of the day.

Among other things, Mr. Chamberlain said that the Government would persist in its Russian and Irish embargoes as long as the other countries were unwilling to make reparation for wrongs done. Mr. Chamberlain spoke, also, of war debts, and in this connexion brought a comment from Sir Stafford Cripps, Labour, who declared that it would be folly to pay the American war debt in full under existing international conditions.

Speaking in the debate before the House of Commons, Rt. Hon. Mr. Neville Chamberlain said that the gold standard was the only standard familiar to everybody and which would inspire confidence, provided certain conditions were observed. Great Britain must try to fix a standard which will be accepted and worked upon by the nations as a whole. Therefore, he thought, Britain must revert to the gold standard as agreed at the Ottawa Conference. Mr. Chamberlain did not suggest that the nation revert to gold at any particular time.

"Before we could revert to any parity on the gold standard we must be satisfied that practical means will be taken to ensure that the gold standard will not be subjected to those defects which recently brought it to the ground," he said.

He trusted that the Economic Conference would give the problem its most serious attention.

The War Debts.

Separation of war debts from the agenda of the Conference was inevitable, as this matter could only be settled by negotiations between debtors and creditors. In the British view, the debt question had been further developed in the conversations between Premier MacDonald and President Roosevelt.

He declined to say more, however, for fear of a misunderstanding in America of his observations.

Referring to the Russian and Irish embargoes, Mr. Chamberlain declared: "We must maintain this economic warfare so long as the other countries are unwilling to make any sort of reparation for the wrongs done. The Government is unable to view with indifference the attacks against our nationals, when these attacks are clearly directed by internal conditions."

Government's Aims.

The Government's aims at the Economic Conference were to restore price levels, deal with currency difficulties and reduce trade barriers," he said. We want to protect the principal currencies of the world from fluctuations, not having relation to intrinsic values, which would be fatal, he added.

The Trade Conference would have unexampled opportunities for discussion and he anticipated a substantial and concrete advance towards a solution of the problem of trade barriers. He did not doubt but that there would be a wide measure of agreement upon the main issues discussed.

Labour's Objections.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Labour, said the Labourites' fear was that Great Britain was allowing the initiative to go to America, especially in connection with the World Economic Conference.

Labour could not regard with equanimity the possibility of using the gold standard as a permanent measure of international value in view of past experience, he said. He contended it would be folly, in view of the existing international situation, to pay America's war debt claims in full.—Reuter.

Chicago, Illinois.
"Chicago's laziest robber is the way police described Marion Harrison, a negro."

Police say that he robbed three men as they got off alone at a deserted station. The first man reported the robbery and police went to the station. There they found the negro in the midst of the third robbery.

"Why didn't you leave after the first holdup?" asked a policeman. "My feet hurt—and I was just sleepy," said the robber, yawning. Police said he used a pipe in his pocket to deceive his victims into believing he had a pistol.—Reuter.

write about his clothes, his meals, his colds, and such small matters. If he has not let him know to his countenance, this diary is the same as a record of his life, and he should not destroy it. The arguments against burning manuscripts are strong. One of the strongest is that, in the ordinary home, voluminous manuscripts are exceedingly difficult to burn.

Bid-Rite Club team in winning the eastern championship at New York this year.

Many players are under the impression that most matches are won by brilliant bids or plays.
As explained to you in the first of this series, Mr. Burnstine won the first hand for his team by correctly analyzing the hand and then passing. In to-day's hand,

Mr. Howard Schenken won 1,400 points for his side because he was tricky enough to pass and let the opponents get themselves into too deep water.

The Bidding
Mr. Schenken was sitting in the South. Both sides were vulnerable. He passed, West also passed, and Mr. Charles Lochridge in the North bid one club.

East overcalled with one spade.
When good players overcall vulnerable, you can count on them holding a five-card suit and a pretty fair hand. Mr. Schenken also realized that his opponents knew that Mr. Lochridge was apt to open a very weak third hand, even though he was vulnerable, as he had done so on a previous board.

Rather than double the bid of one spade, Mr. Schenken believed it best to pass to see if the opponents would continue the bidding.
West was perfectly justified in going to two spades. Mr. Loch-ridge passed. This was all the encouragement that East needed
to go to four spades, which Mr.
Schenken promptly doubled.

The Play
Mr. Schenken led his ace of clubs and shifted to the nine of

Prevent trouble—keep teeth free from film with this special film-removing tooth paste

If you were to allow your teeth to go even one day without brush-dull and unattractive. You could easily see this ugly coating by look-

The new cleansing and polishing

DRAMATIC WEST INDIES DEFEAT

London, June 2. Yorkshire are still winning and at the present rate of progress are odds on favourites for retention of the county cricket championship.

Gloucester are their latest victims, and with Sussex still conceding points, the champions are establishing a lead which will take a lot to reduce.

Yorkshire gained the upper hand on the first innings, when in reply to Gloucester's 245 they hit up 369. Gloucester collapsed in their second venture being sent back for 148 and the "Tykes" hit off the required 25 runs without loss.

No decisive verdict could be reached between Surrey and Sussex.

LAST RACE MEETING OF THE CURRENT SEASON

ATTRACTIVE HOLIDAY PROGRAMME FOR MONDAY NEXT

An interesting programme of ten events including three handicap races and a number of races for ponies which have not won more than one race this season has been prepared for the Eighth Extra Meeting of the Hongkong Jockey Club, which will be contested on Monday marking the conclusion of the last meeting of the current racing season.

On account of poor entries it is not expected that the Bohemian Plate, the first event, will have more than three starters. King's Bounty and Cyclamen Bay are the two likely candidates at the finish and between them we should witness one of the most keenly contested races of the season.

THEY AND CORN STAKES.

Although there may be more than ten starters in the Second "They and Corn" Stakes over five furlongs Melody stands out as the most prominent among the candidates with any chance of winning. Melody has run successfully so far over long and short distances and if he is started here he would be my choice. Paul Jones lost to Now's The Time after a most thrilling finish in the last meeting and if L. G. Frost is again in the saddle he is a sound one to follow for a place betting. Gold Bar, White Butterfly and Darion are possibilities over this sprint affair.

JULING STAKES.

Amoy has been placed for so many times this season that many punters hold the opinion that now that the season is coming to a successful conclusion it is high time that C.C.C.'s pony should score another popular win for its Chinese owner. Under L. G. Frost Amoy ran a most creditable race last time and was unfortunate to go under Wakefield. The time of the race was a good one and with a reduction of eleven pounds Amoy should be a useful one to follow for a winning bet. The position regarding the two minor places is very uncertain. I fancy Banjolin, Burgomaster, Charming Face and Adam. The latter is particularly good as an outside bet and long shot both ways.

They will be met by Mr. L. R. Hilderson and expect to remain in the Colony for 13 days, during which time it is hoped to stage them in exhibition tennis.

RESULTS AT A GLANCE

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Middlesex (426 & 79-2) beat Glamorgan (267 & 313) on first innings
Surrey (203 & 246-6) beat Sussex (159 & 302-4) on first innings
Derby (455-7 dec & 136-2) beat Essex (283 & 308) by eight wickets.
Yorkshire (369 & 25-0) beat Gloucester (245 & 148) by 10 wickets

OTHER MATCHES.

Worcester (215 & 284-9) beat West Indies (239 & 257) by one wicket.
Oxford (297 & 204) drew with Leicester (306 & 160-9)

minifored Essex by Derby. The game was featured by high scoring 1,140 runs being put on the board for 20 wickets.

Essex batted first and aggregated 239 to which Derby responded with 455 for 7 declared. Essex put up a better showing in the return and easily saved the innings defeat, setting Derby 136 to win. These were obtained for the loss of two wickets.

STORER'S ACHIEVEMENT.

Storer joined the select band of batsmen to have scored a double century this season. His 232 was compiled by means of brilliant batting and contributed to more than half the Derby

From this port the two youngsters will proceed to Shanghai for additional matches. After their engagement in Shanghai they will make an invasion of Kobe to meet the Japanese tennis stars.

The P.I. lawn tennis association has communicated with the Tokyo officials regarding the visit of Go-vis and Polintan to that city. Local officials are confident that the Japanese officials will arrange matches for the players in several cities of that country.

This is the first time the P. I. lawn tennis association has sent players abroad to gain tournament experience.

of the season. Cyclamen Bay was thoroughly beaten in the Fifth Extra Meeting when, as a favourite in a classic field, he finished without a place. Sadko was first on that occasion and on Monday it seems likely that Sadko will be reserved for the Whitson Plate and on this account Cyclamen Bay should be my selected winner here. If Sadko runs here instead of coming out in the principal race he should win quite comfortably.

SECOND TYTAM HANDICAP "B".

Even with a handicap of 159 pounds Disorderly Conduct has the chance of its life to win with a lot to spare in this race over one mile. (Continued on Page 5.)

Handicap in the six furlong sprint. Ntutuk which has not been so successful in its many outings in the season should close the book for the first half yearly period with a win on Monday if the course is hard and fast. What's That ran well after Woodland Stag and he and Wotin should find little difficulty in securing the two minor positions.

YANKEES JUST WIN

Washington, May 2.

In a double header to-day Brooklyn and Boston in the National League scored a win each. The New York Giants hit furiously against Philadelphia and registered eleven runs.

Cleveland twice nosed out St. Louis in a double header in the American League. Harder pitching to blank out St. Louis in the second game.

The Yankees managed to squeeze out Philadelphia after Gomez had pitched and fanned thirteen of the New York batsmen. Reuter's scores were:

£750 GOLF CONTEST

PADGHAM & LACEY IN FINAL

BOTH RYDER CUP NOMINEES

(Special to "Telegraph")

(The Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1881. Received June 2, 8.40 a.m.)

Leeds, June 2.

Two Ryder Cup nominees will contest the final for the £750 Yorkshire Evening News golf tournament over the Temple Newsam course to-morrow.

They are Lacey (Seladon Park) and Albert Padgham (Royal Ashdown Forest), who to-day beat Dalley and Gadd respectively in the semi-finals.

In the quarter finals, Alan Dalley beat Abe Mitchell by 2 and 1, Padgham beat Wynne (Harewood Downs) by two up, Bert Gadd (Brandhall) beat the Ryder Cup nominee Perry at the nineteenth and Lacey defeated a fellow Ryder Cup "Possible," Norman Davies (Wallasey) at the 21st hole.

Lacey was again taken to the twenty-first when he beat Dalley in the semi-final, but Padgham won with greater ease against Gadd, being three up and two to play.—Reuter.

EARLIER RESULTS.

Leeds, June 2.

Following the failure of eleven British Ryder Cup nominees to qualify in the match play for the Leeds £750 tournament, there were more surprises when the first two rounds were decided to-day.

Bussan, the 22-year old Harrogate professional, beat Charles Whitcombe, last year's Ryder Cup captain, by 2 up, and William Large (Liverpool) beat Percy Alliss, 1 up.

A great fight was witnessed between Abe Mitchell and Henry Cotton. At the turn Cotton was 2 up, but the veteran's play underwent a transformation on the home journey and he won two up and one to play. Gadd beat the international player, Syd. Easterbrook, who led the qualifying field, at the twentieth hole.

Allen Dalley, one of the "fuds" of the season, enhanced his chances of Ryder Cup selection by beating Len Holland, 4 up and 3 to play. In the second round, Lacey beat Bussan, 4 and 2; Alf. Padgham (Royal Ashdown Forest) beat Large 4 and 3; Dalley beat Taylor at the 10th; Mitchell beat Ward at the 10th.—Reuter Special.

KOWLOON G.C.

Draw for First Round of the Summer Cup.

The draw for the first round of the Kowloon Golf Club's Summer Cup competition, to be played on June 11, is as follows:

A. S. King (17) v. S. Maender (12); A. T. Braloy (6) v. J. Charlton (15); W. E. Ramsey (14) v. J. Pooler (7); F. E. Booker (6) v. H. Buxton (10); G. Alliss (6) v. H. Hampton (18); S. Hart (12) v. J. Macknight (3); A. Andrews (18) v. W. A. Stewart (7).

Hornbostel, Fuqua Lead Indiana to Win

Indianapolis.

Charles Hornbostel and Ivan Fuqua, 1932 United States Olympic track team members, led Indiana University to victory in the Butler Relays here with fast performances in team events.

The University of Michigan placed second and Illinois tied the accepted world's indoor record for the 60-yard dash in winning that event in 8.2s, one-tenth shy of his new unofficial standard set two weeks ago at South Bend.

Hornbostel, the Evansville boy, doing Indiana's "iron man" task this year, picked up 75 yards on the leaders in the university two-mile relay by running his half-mile anchor leg in the unofficial time of 1m. 53s., to place Indiana second to Michigan.

He returned to the track later in the university four-mile relay to gain some revenge on Dean Woolsey of Illinois, who had defeated Hornbostel with regularity. The Hoosier beat off Woolsey's challenge in the final lap with a dazzling show of speed.

Fuqua, Brazil (Ind.) dash man, who was a member of the world's record 1000-metres Olympic team, anchored the Indiana mile relay team to victory.

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition for which many names are given but few really understand. It is simply weakness—a break down as it were, in the vital force that sustains the system. No matter what may be its cause (they are almost always the same) it is a condition of the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary duties of life. Now, what alone is essential in all such cases is increased vitality, vigor, vital strength and energy to throw off these morbid influences, and as light succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by means of THE NEW WINN-KENEDY THERAPY No. 3.

than by any other known method. Be ready as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions will the shattered health be restored. THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE. and new ailments imported in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, tired, and weak. This therapy is suitable for all ages, constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a disease or derangement whose main feature is weakness, that will not be speedily and permanently overcome by this restorative therapy, which is so simple to use. It is a wide-spread scourge of the modern age, and is caused by the overwork of the body and the exhaustion of the mind.

Politics in China

To The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph

Sir,—I am most pleased to inform the House that the Sino-Japanese armistice was signed yesterday. These few words in which Sir John Simon announced to the House of Commons that a truce had at last been signed between China and Japan on May 31, were received amid general cheers and those cheers have no doubt re-echoed around the world by now. Whatever the rights and wrongs of the cause of the fighting were, everyone is intensely glad that the actual loss of life and devastation of property have ceased, at any rate for the time being.

But a little black cloud, to mar one's hopes, quickly appears on the horizon, and that little black cloud appears in the form of that wily old fox, Feng Yu-hsiang, coupled with the south-west Political Council's assurance of its unqualified support to his anti-Japanese campaign.

Feng is, we are told, organising an army of 160,000 men for the sole purpose of waging war on Japan, and he solemnly declares that he will never recognise any truce reached by the Nanking command; yet the next day he issues a declaration of loyalty to Nanking.

But Nanking signed the truce, so how can he be loyal to Nanking and fight the Japanese at the same time, when Nanking has ordained that the fighting must cease?

Mr. T. V. Soong declares in America that there is no chaos in China "except where the Japanese invasion and Japanese intrigue have made it." Well, now the Japanese "invasion and Japanese intrigue" have ceased, so who is creating chaos now?

Feng and the South-west Political Council obviously, because Nanking decrees that the fighting shall cease and Feng decrees otherwise, yet Feng is loyal to Nanking, the "de facto" Government of China!

I have closely studied politics in China for more than twenty years, so when Feng Yu-hsiang's name crops up as it has in the present situation I look up my records to brush up my memory of Feng's history and this is just a little bit of it—sufficient, however, to show the South-west Political Council that they are backing the wrong horse. Indeed I will go further than that and say they are backing an exceedingly doubtful starter. He may carry their money, but even if he does, you can lay heavy odds to a tin kettle that he won't try, even if he does start, which I very much doubt. So the South-west Political Council will certainly lose not only their money but also a good deal of "face."

My records show that in 1924 when Wu Pei-fu drove Chang Tso-lin's forces out of China proper beyond the Great Wall back into Manchuria, Feng, who was left in Peking to look after things there in Wu Pei-fu's absence, turned traitor and smote Wu Pei-fu, his own ally, in the back, so that Wu Pei-fu, caught between Chang Tso-lin's forces and Feng's, had to flee by sea to the Yangtze, and that was more or less the end of Wu Pei-fu politically.

And traitor Feng is the man the South-west Political Council are backing. My advice to them, and it is given unasked but in the friendliest spirit as a near neighbour, is to keep out of complications with Mr. Feng Yu-hsiang and concentrate their entire efforts on eliminating Bolshevism in China, like Chiang Kai-shek is so wisely doing in Central China.

CARDINAL BOURNE GRAVELY ILL.

FAMOUS DIGNITARY OF ROMAN CHURCH

London, June 2.

Cardinal Bourne, Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster, is seriously ill, suffering with acute pulmonary oedema.—Reuter.

The early years of Cardinal Bourne's career were distinguished by his controversy with Cardinal Vaughan, while he himself was Rector of the Southwark Diocesan Seminary, over the Seminary question. In 1890 he was consecrated Bishop of Epiphany and the next year became Bishop of Southwark.

On the death of Cardinal Vaughan in 1903, the Pope nominated him as Bishop of Westminster, where he consecrated the great new Byzantine Cathedral. He was raised to the Cardinalate in 1911.

He has, at times, been the storm centre of controversies outside the church, as instanced by the occasion in 1908 when the Eucharistic Congress was held in London. Then he evoked strong protests from non-Catholics by his project for a procession of the Host through the streets. He had to abandon this idea, as it threatened to result in widespread disturbances.

He may carry their money, but even if he does, you can lay heavy odds to a tin kettle that he won't try, even if he does start, which I very much doubt. So the South-west Political Council will certainly lose not only their money but also a good deal of "face."

My records show that in 1924 when Wu Pei-fu drove Chang Tso-lin's forces out of China proper beyond the Great Wall back into Manchuria, Feng, who was left in Peking to look after things there in Wu Pei-fu's absence, turned traitor and smote Wu Pei-fu, his own ally, in the back, so that Wu Pei-fu, caught between Chang Tso-lin's forces and Feng's, had to flee by sea to the Yangtze, and that was more or less the end of Wu Pei-fu politically.

DEATH PENALTY FOR RIOTERS.

SEVERE SENTENCES FOR GERMAN COMMUNISTS

Berlin, June 2.

Severe sentences have been inflicted upon Communists involved in the Altona clash, which occurred on July 17 of last year, and in which twelve persons were killed and fifty wounded. The day has since been referred to as "Bloody Sunday."

The four ring-leaders of the Communist crowd, which on that day fought with Nazis, have been sentenced to death. Five of the other rioters have been sentenced to prison terms varying from three to ten years.

When the Communists and Nazis fought at Altona, it was near to the time of the general elections. The position in the Reichstag was critical. Political feeling was bitter. The Communists, it was alleged, attacked a Nazi procession, and for hours the streets of Altona were seething with fighting bands. As a result, scores were arrested and processions and public meetings prohibited.—Reuter.

WOMAN MURDERED

UNTENANTED FLAT SCENE OF SHAIKUAN CRIME

Missing since Thursday morning, the body of Po Mu, a Chinese woman, was discovered yesterday evening by Shaikuan police in the untenanted ground floor of 37 Kam Wah Street, Shaikuan.

The woman had been strangled to death by someone who decamped with Hongkong Bank notes to the value of $200, known to have been in her possession when she was first reported missing.

One rattan bangle was also taken by the murderer, who must have been disturbed at his task, for the woman still wore a valuable jade bangle on her right wrist and an English sovereign gold bangle on her left wrist.

The body was removed to the Public Mortuary. Police are investigating the crime.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Two men fight for a woman's heart in "Men About Town" the Fox picture, now at the King's Theatre. The men become enemies and one attempts to destroy the other by sending him on a mission so dangerous that death seems a certainty. Fate plays its part and tragedy makes way for a renewal of the ties of friendship when the modern Damon and Pythias unite in their efforts to save the woman from scandal, following the mysterious death of an international spy.

Warner Baxter portrays the leading role and Karen Morley, enacts the leading feminine part. "Men About Town" is described as a thrilling and dramatic romance with unusual features.

"Men Must Fight"

What will American be like in 1940? That is the question asked and answered in "Men Must Fight," which opens to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre with an all-star cast headed by Diana Wynyard of "Rasputin and the Empress" and "Cavalcade" fame, Lewis Stone, Phillips Holmes, May Robson and Ruth Selwyn.

This production is said to be one of the most unusual pictures to come out of Hollywood. It covers developments in America from the end of the last World War to the period of 1940 in an effort to picture what the next war will be like. The effort to peer ahead in the future has given the production experts of M-G-M an opportunity to create entirely new effects in architecture, in dress styles and in assuming the conditions under which the next war will be fought.

The picture depicts the drama of a woman who, losing her lover in one war, fights to prevent her son from being forced to take up arms in another war. Daring in thought and speech, it is not a war play but an anti-war play.

One of the thrilling episodes of the drama is an air attack on New York City with the destruction of the Empire State Building, Brooklyn Bridge and other famous structures.

"Men of Chance"

A brilliant cast makes "Men of Chance," which opened yesterday at the Central Theatre, a thoroughly entertaining piece of film fare. Mary Astor gives one of her most notable performances. This beautiful young player has an intelligence, charm and sincerity that makes her work almost flawless.

Ricardo Cortez once more is teamed with Miss Astor and the combination is a particularly happy one. His is a suave, finished performance. John Halliday, Kitty Kelly and Ralph Ince contribute most satisfactory work.

"Men of Chance" is a drama from the pen of Louis Wenzel, author of the sensational "Five Star Final." He has furnished a highly plausible yarn of Parisian boulevard and the world's pleasure centers. A surprise finish lends a most exciting windup to the film.

"Bachelor's Affairs"

"Bachelor's Affairs," the new Fox comedy showing Adolphe Menjou, comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday next.

The central figure in the story is a wealthy bachelor who is happy and contented until he meets and marries a foolish young flapper and finds her vice-cracking, gold-digging sister a member of his entourage. Settling the stage to get rid of them both, he resorts to all manner of subterfuge leading to complications and situations said to be highly amusing.

The debutant Adolphe Menjou has the leading role of the repentant husband. Minna Gombell, in the role of the sophisticated sister who engineers the marriage, is said to bring all her accomplished art to being thoroughly disagreeable and unlikeable to her characterization.

Herbert Mundin, the English comedian, has a role that is said to give him a better opportunity than any of his preceding screen efforts.

During the action of the play, Miss Gombell and Miss Marsh, between them, display more than thirty of the latest fashion creations. They are said to be not only lavish and beautiful

LATE MR. W. S. CUFF.

FUNERAL HELD AT HAPPY
VALLEY YESTERDAY

The funeral of the late Mr. W. S. Cuff, for many years Traffic Inspector of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, took place last evening at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley, in the presence of a number of friends. The Rev. W. Walton Rogers officiated.

Present were Messrs. R. Baker, Manager and Chief Engineer of the Kowloon Canton Railway, I. B. Trevor, Traffic Manager, R. Lay, P. Grant, R. H. E. Marks, W. Shannon, C. Hatt, F. L. Rapley and others.

Among the wreaths were those from the Chinese Department, K.C.R., Palace Hotel, European Officers of the Fire Brigade, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. E. Marks, Mr. and Mrs. S. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dick, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kirby, Mr. and Mrs. Everett, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. M. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Fraser, Messrs. A. Nicol, J. Brennan, C. P. Fallon, Sergeant Nolan and Hatterston, from "One Who Understands" and others.

golf in a few weeks," Dr. Allen promised.

"You're sure he's all right?" "Of course. I'm going to stay around though until he's able to turn handspins."

"Steve is in his own room," Monn added. "The boys carried him up where he'd be more comfortable. When he is a little less drowsy he'll want to talk to you."

"I'll be down for dinner," Lottie promised.

"You certainly will not, young woman," Dr. Allen said. "We'll have it sent to you." He stood in the door a moment, offering casual advice, and then went to Steve's room.

"Lottie!" cried Monn suddenly. The two girls clung together.

"You saved him for me," Lottie cried softly, wiping her eyes. "You, and Barry. It looks as though Steve and I will have to do something for you two."

But Monn's thoughts raced back to that 15 minutes in the plane when everything except Steve's life seemed unimportant. Those 15 minutes had taught their lesson. She looked at Lottie with shining eyes. "Perhaps you have done it already," she said.

ful but also reflections of the advanced modes.

"Madison Square Garden"

A cross-section of life, a tapestry into which are interwoven all the threads of fundamental human drama—that is "Madison Square Garden," now at the Queen's Theatre. The same technique that created "Grand Hotel" has gone into the making of this film, inasmuch as in both a kaleidoscopic story flashes against the background of a vast public meeting place.

No matter what the characters do, however, "The Garden" remains the principal protagonist. It plays the title role. Life goes on there. Champions may rise and fall. Park Avenue and Second may mingle in the audience. The social aristocracy may assemble there for balls or horse shows. Prize-fights, hockey matches, six-day bicycle races may occur on the floor; comedy and tragedy, murder, graft, romance may take place behind the scenes. But the life of "The Garden" goes on.

GRAND MOTHER IN WALKING RACE

Sydney, N.S. Wales.
The most picturesque competitor in a 20-mile walking race for women held recently at Sydney was Mrs. C. H. Baxter, aged 64, and a grandmother. She out walked eight younger girls, and was one of the five to finish.
In contrast of the "hiking" outfits of the other competitors, she walked in a long black dress.
The course was from Warwick
Farm to Sydney.
The New Zealand champion walked, Miss Esther James, received a shock when she thought a motor car was going to run into her at Chullora, and collapsed.
The winner of the walk was Miss Edna Sayers, 19, of Earlwood (—four hours two minutes);
second, Mrs. M. Loveridge, Darlington; third Miss Phyllis Williams, 22, Paddington.—Reuter.

retaining a close association with Sir Cecil Clementi, who had come from Ceylon as Hongkong's Governor.

He has held the position ever since, displaying conspicuous abilities, serving also on several occasions as Officer Administering the Government, in which capacity his closer associations with the public have served to emphasise and crystallise the high esteem in which Sir Wilfred is popularly held in the Colony.

He was invested as Companion of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George in November, 1927.

I.S.O. FOR MR. C.E. FRITH

36 YEARS' SERVICE IN GOVERNMENT.

The Imperial Service Order has been conferred upon Mr. Charles Edward Frith, formerly Chief Inspector of the Sanitary Department in Hongkong.
The distinction of 36 years' continuous service to the Imperial and Hongkong Governments has earned for Mr. Frith a much deserved honour and his many friends in the Colony will rejoice with him in the recognition he has now received.

Mr. Frith who left for Home on leave prior to retirement at the beginning of April last, first joined the Royal Marines in 1895
and saw service on the China station until 1903. He was concerned in the Boxer Rebellion of 1900 and the Greco massacres of

LENIN'S WIDOW HONOURED

GIVEN HIGHEST SOVIET AWARD

Moscow.
The widow of Lenin, now known as N. I. Krupskaya, Vice-Commissary of Education, has been given the Order of Lenin and the Red Labour Banner, which are the highest rewards given in the Soviet Union.
She is one of 60 prominent women in Russia who have just received the two decorations, for having done exceptional work.—Reuter.

1898, later being awarded the China Medal.

ACTIVE IN H.K.V.D.C.

After a brief period with the Royal Naval Yard he entered the service of the Sanitary Department being promoted to the second class in 1905 and to the first grade in 1908. It was after he returned from Home leave in 1923 that he received his appointment as Chief Sanitary Inspector, which post he held until his retirement in April.
A staunch supporter of the Volunteers he was one of their most active members and of recent years took a keen interest in the annual shooting competitions of the corps as an organiser. He was also a crack shot and has assisted the Volunteers in league contests, having been a member of the team which won the Bellifos
Shield for three years.

Nine years ago Mr. Frith was presented with the Long Service Medal.
